Due to the current situation, the worldwide corona pandemic, the world of work is becoming increasingly unbounded.
Employers and employees gradually see the advantages of home office and "New Work". The pandemic forced companies and employees to organize their new work environment quick, which sometimes ended up in a disorganized and chaotic way.
If new forms of work are implemented in a planned manner in the future, all sides can benefit even more. The crisis, in general, holds plenty of opportunities to set a new course for the future of work. On the long run authorities will have to support the upcoming requirements of employees and employers with adjusted rules and regulations. An essential part of the employment cycle for employees and employers are terminations and sometimes even separation agreements.
